Work on Storm at Sea

We have been making progress on getting the design right for our next opportunity quilt, Storm at Sea. We will continue to work on the layout of the blocks to get the look we want with the ribbon pattern running through it. Nona will have the quilt up on the design board and we can finish getting the layout just right and ready to sew.

Please bring your machines and gray thread so we can begin sewing the rows together.

Upcoming Quilt Shows:

July 29-30, 2016

Orange Grove Quilters Guild Quilt Show

Building Plans at GWC.

We have known that building plans at GWC included the removal of the Community Center. We have received word that August will be our last meeting in the Community Center. Since this is our preferred place for our meetings, we should start to explore our options of whether to continue to meet on campus or find another venue. Meeting on campus means a longer distance to walk to our meetings and continued limited parking, so maybe we need to explore our options.

I recently contacted Piecemakers in Costa Mesa to inquire about meeting there. Piecemakers has an area we can meet in on the last Tuesday morning of each month. This is the only time they have open in their schedule and the cost would be $35 a month.

Marge Densmore has also offered to look into using the community room at her complex but the parking is very limited.

If anyone is associated with Huntington Landmark Community, we could see about meeting in their community room. They have ample parking.

Also, does anyone know if the new Senior Center near Central Park in Huntington Beach will have rooms available at a reasonable price?

For visitors and new members, here is a map of the college. The Community Center is number 12 on the map.
